What changed in just one week?

ఇవన్నీ ఈ ఒక్క వారంలో జరిగాయి,

so let us decode them in one minute.

One: Agnipath has not been scrapped; about three in four Agniveers now get two more years.

Two: the Supreme Court says the 24-hour clock to produce you before a magistrate starts at detention, not at the formal arrest.

Three: the two-child rule for panchayat polls is not struck down; it is only referred to a larger bench.

Four: green crackers are designed by a Nagpur institute, but licensed by the Petroleum and Explosives Safety Organisation.

Five: India will build 92 gigawatt-hours of power storage, and the biggest share is pumped storage, not batteries.

Six: a new scheme pays 30 per cent of the cost of lithium and nickel processing plants.

Seven: new aviation rules replace the colonial rules of 1937 from January 2027.

Eight: from November 9, trade margins on 137 cancer medicines are capped at 30 per cent.

That is just eight. Pralay, Malabar, the American midterms and more, with 15 practice questions, are in today's full class at 6 in the evening.
